Senjata Mukmin PDF? ComPrar is the best tool for searching information from the PDF Kitab Senjata Mukmin.Q: Programmatically access application settings (AS3) Is there a way to access the application settings from an ActionScript (3.0) script (before Flash Player 10)? I don't want to have the user go to the settings manager to set the values, I want to be able to set them through a script. Update: It would seem that the settings object is the way to go, however it is not available in Flash Player 10.0. A: There are two ways to do this. You can set the values in FlashPlayer via ExternalInterface, but this only works between your SWF and the browser, and is a potential security threat. OR You can use the Internet Options settings to set the settings programatically. For example, if you have a global variable for your flash.settings.general.barWidth and you want to change it, you could set it like this: var myvar = FLASH.settings.general.barWidth; myvar = 23; The FlashPlayer will pick this up, and the value will change. Obviously this will only work if you have the option to change the settings of the browser's Internet Options, and you can use it to save the settings to a file, too. Hope this helps! --- abstract: 82157476af
